

Exhibit A

New Hampshire Hold 'Em Table Game

Object of the game:

The players will combine their two hole cards with the dealer's three community cards in an effort to make a pair of sixes or better.

Rules of the game:

The dealer will switch between two decks each hand, washing once at the beginning of each half hour, and shuffling every hand.

The game will be dealt from left to right, each player who places an ante bet will receive one card at a time, until all players at the table have two facedown cards. These hole cards must be kept private by the player who receives them. Once each player has 2 cards, the dealer will payout the three down cards, and six card bonus cards, place the remaining cards in the discard rack, and begin the hand.

Once a player places their last bet, the cards must be placed in front of their chips. From this point on, only the dealer may touch the cards.

Any hand of three of a kind or better (refer to the payouts section) will be called out by the dealer and acknowledged by the floor manager.

Equipment to be used:

The dealer will have two standard 52 card decks, and a tray of chips that will be used for payouts.

New Hampshire Hold 'Em Method of play

Players make a $2 $4 $5 or $10 ante wager. All other main game bets must match this ante bet.

Players will choose to make a $2-$10 pair plus and 6-card bonus wager.

The dealer gives each player two cards face down. Players may, and should, examine their cards. Each player's hole cards must remain concealed from other players at the table.

Player's may either fold or make a "flop" bet. Players also have the option to make to add two additional "flop" bets.

The "flop", or first community card, is turned over in front of the dealer.

Player's may either fold or make a "turn" bet. Players also have the option to make to add two additional "turn" bets.

The "turn", or second community card, is turned over in front of the dealer.

Player's may either fold or make a "river" bet. Players also have the option to make to add two additional "river" bets.

Once river bets have been placed, or a player has folded, the guests hole cards must be placed on the dealer side of their wagers. The player is not allowed to touch their cards after the dealer exposes the river card.

The River, or third community card, is turned over in front of the dealer.

Dealer now satisfy the three fazes of the game, one at a time, working from right to left. First will be the pair plus wager, followed by exposing all players down cards and satisfying the main game, then folding the main game board and all players cards that aren't involved in the 6-card bonus game. The 6-card bonus board is revealed, and the final bonus bet game is satisfied.

All wagers paid according to the following pay table included in the payouts section.

Types of Wagers for the game/Wager amount for the game:

Players are free to wager either $2 $4 $5 or $10 dollar on their ante space to receive cards. Every other bet placed must match this initial bet. Players must place one and can place up to three bets to see the flop, turn and river cards.

There are two bonus bets available, a Pair Plus bonus, in which the player will be paid according to the dealers 3 "flop, turn and river" cards independently of their hole cards, and a '6 card bonus wager' which will combine the players two down cards with four separate cards, basically making a second hand for one bonus wager.
