

ROULETTE

Object of the game:

Players place chips, betting which of thirty-eight (38) divided sections in a roulette wheel a spun ball will drop into.

Rules of the game:

Players purchase chips from the dealer. Each player will be assigned a different chip color from the eight (8) colors available. Once each color chip at the table is assigned to a player, the table is full (8 players). Players may not bet 'cash chips' on the table.

Each chip represents the value the player chooses at buy-in. At buy-in, players may request their chips be valued at $1, $5 or $10. If a player chooses any value other than $1, one chip of that player's color will be placed on the rim of the wheel with a $5 or $10 marker placed on top of it.

Players must be at the table to place their bets. Verbal declarations of bets are not binding.

Equipment to be used:

A roulette wheel and ball. Eight sets of different chip colors.

Roulette Method of Play:

Players may place bets on numbers, colors, and sections that are represented on the roulette table.

When the dealer determines, in his sole discretion, that players have placed most of their bets, the dealer will spin the ball counter to the direction the roulette wheel is spinning. The dealer will wait a brief period for additional bets then announce "no more bets" to the table, while sweeping their hand above the betting area. Bets that have been placed are now final and no additional betting shall be permitted.

When the ball lands, the dealer marks the number it lands in, clears losing bets, and pays off winning bets. The dealer then removes the marker, and the process is repeated.

Types of Wagers:

Players are free to wager anywhere from $1 to $10 per bet. Each individual bet is limited to a $10 increment. There is no limit to, other than the maximum amount of bets available on the table, the number of $10 bets that can be placed.
